

UNDERSTANDING INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY IN SCHOOL

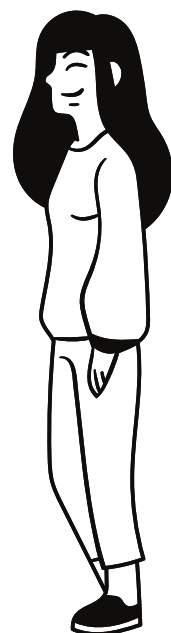

Intellectual Property

Do Not Reproduce

Do not reproduce directly, indirectly, permanently, or temporarily a work by means of printing, reprography, sound recording, video recording, photography, handwritten notes, or otherwise. This right also applies to the sound recording or video recording of scripts, musical works, or works of similar nature during their performance or broadcast, and also includes the construction of an architectural structure based on architectural plans or models.

Do Not Distribution

With or without compensation, don't provide the original of a work, or a copy thereof, to the public for the purpose of trade or circulation.

Do Not Public Transmission

Don't make available or communicate to the public the content of a work through sounds or images by wire or wireless network, or through other means of communication, including enabling the public to receive the content of such work by any of the above means at a time or place individually chosen by them.
